

School Cancelled For Remainder Of The Year

A VIEW FROM A NATIONAL GUARD HELICOPTER shows the extensive damage sustained by the west end of the town of Maynard, where two persons lost their lives—Glenda Kelly, 3, and Mrs. Louis Ponsar. Estimated loss to Maynard Co-op runs as high as $50,000.

RED CROSS UNITS moved into both Oelwein and Maynard the night the tornado struck and worked with district members without stopping around the clock. Main headquarters was set up in the basement of the Presbyterian church, with a second large unit working out of Sacred Heart on South Frederick.

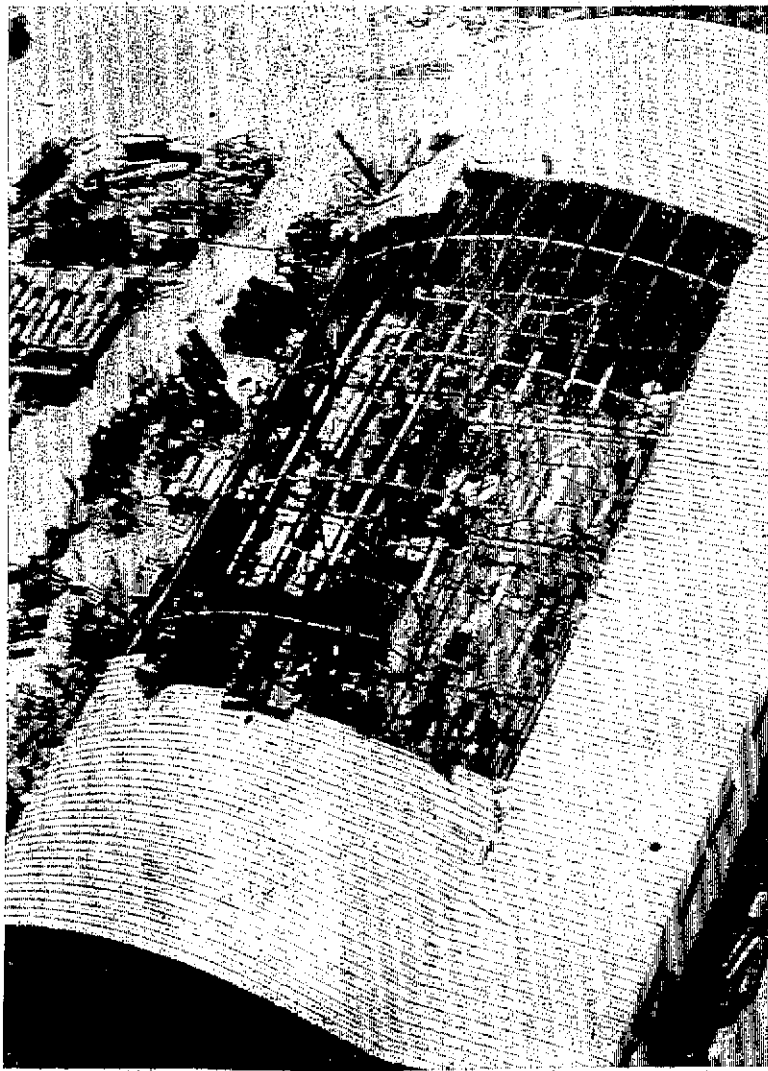

MILLER confers with Mazziotti.

WOULD YOU BE INTERESTED?

MAYOR SAMUEL MAZZIOTTI conferred with Washington's Senator Jack Miller who arrived to offer whatever assistance his office might have available. He talked to several small-business operators such as "Pete" Meyer, of Meyer-Lincoln Hardware, at right.

OELWEIN INDUSTRY was hard hit by the storm which hit Oelwein Wednesday afternoon. This aerial shot shows the severe damage done to Speedy Manufacturing. Most of the roof of the main building was ripped away as shown in the above picture.

OELWEIN'S CITY HALL. The City Hall of Oelwein suffered extensive damage. City officials moved back into the first floor offices Monday according to Clerk Tom Peterson. Also listed as a total loss was the Cross Printerie building adjacent to the city hall.

STREETS THROUGHOUT the city were virtually closed Wednesday afternoon at 5 p.m. after the twister passed through the city and proceeded on to Maynard and Charles City. Thursday at about noon most streets were passable, due to the help of thousands of persons (some we'll never know) from all over the state.

CIVIL DEFENSE AND H.A.R.K. radio operators went into operation as soon as possible, setting up headquarters in the basement of Northwestern Bell Telephone. Larry Smith and Paul Peterson were two of the many who volunteered.

HOUSE ON A CAR—John "Jack" Kappmeyer, West Central principal checks a car smashed by a trailer house which hit a home, bounced off and dropped on an auto at Maynard.