U Of I Institute Cautions Owners Of Riding Mowers

IOWA CITY—The University of Iowa Institute of Agricultural Medicine cautions owners of riding rotary power lawn mowers to keep children away from the mowers when they are in operation.

Accidents involving riding mowers have already been fatal to two children in Iowa this spring, said William H. McConnell, a safety engineer with the Institute's Accident Prevention Section.

McConnell, who is currently investigating accidents involving these increasingly popular machines, advised owners to "think twice about allowing children to operate, riding mowers or even allowing them to play in the area in which the mowers are running."

"Riding mowers can be terrific time-savers when it comes to trimming lawns and acreages, but at the same time they must be operated with care."

One of the fatal accidents this spring occurred when a riding mower was backed over a four-year-old child. Operating riding mowers in reverse seems to be especially hazardous for playing children, McConnell said.

Of 45 riding mower accidents studied by the Institute last year, six involved children, all of them under five years of age, who were injured when mowers were backed over them. All six suffered amputations, with surgical amputation of the leg necessary in two cases.

The other mower fatality this spring involved a 10-year-old girl who was killed when the lawn and garden tractor she was driving overturned in a ditch while the girl was driving along a county road.

Stability of the machine is a new accident factor which is peculiar to riding mowers. Lack of stability was a factor in nine accidents investigated by the Institute in 1967.

"Operation of riding mowers on sloping terrain has led to a number of bizarre accidents," McConnell said.

Twenty of the 45 accidents studied by the Institute last year involved amputations of toes, fingers, and legs. Other injuries included cuts, fractures, punctures, burns and rupture.

The Institute is continuing its investigation of riding rotary power mower accidents this summer. The research is aimed at aiding in the design of safer mowers.

Most reports of mower accidents are brought to the Institute's attention by Iowa physicians who cooperate in the research. Persons who have been injured themselves while operating riding mowers or persons who know of others who have been injured can aid in the research by reporting the accident to McConnell at the Institute of Agricultural Medicine in Iowa City.

All information collected is kept strictly confidential and is used only for statistical and evaluative purposes, McConnell emphasized. Investigation of the accidents is supported by the U.S. Public Health Service.

Corn Progress Ahead Of 1967

DES MOINES — The Iowa Crop and Livestock Reporting Service says unusually cool weather last week slowed corn growth, but the crop's progress continues ahead of last year.

The service said Monday about 65 per cent of the planted corn acreage in the state had emerged. Stands were 94 per cent of normal compared to 89 per cent on the same date last year.

The service said the crop is generally in good condition, but sunny and warm weather is needed. There was some damage from frost reported in northern Iowa, but it apparently was light.

Other findings by the Reporting Service:

—Soybean planting progressed rapidly last week with 76 per cent of the acreage in the ground, compared to 73 per cent a year ago.

—The oats crop was reported in fair to excellent condition.

—Pasture conditions ranged from mostly fair to excellent, although the growth of grass had been slowed by the weather.
